Paradigm Shift

Many have been curious about the gear logo for the basic Leadering™ Paradigm Shift Program.

At first glance, the machinery image seems to suggest the opposite of what Leadering™ is attempting to achieve in maximizing and advancing human systems.

Rather, the gears represent the finest point of exchange between the before and after paradigms - the conduit for the paradigm shift. They represent an exchange of a man-made machinery, infrastructure, and system for a natural one consistent with forces inside and outside of you which have evolved to ensure the survival and maximization of you and all human systems.

The Leadering™ paradigm shift is an exchange of gears by which your world operates. It is an exchange of a system in which you make gains by sublimating yourself to the needs and betterment of a human-driven machinery for a nature-driven one in which you capitalize on the same natural forces maximizing all human systems to simultaneously give and receive: to nourish and to be nourished.

Goal achievement and creation are improved by capitalizing on natural forces maximizing human systems.

Management science has tended to favour creation an effective organizational machinery by plugging people into it to make it run.

Good leaders after the Leadering paradigm shift will plug their people and their organizational machinery into the larger systems of natural forces and mechanisms that are acting on all human systems, whether individuals or organizations
